ages Which Followed the Adoption of Reciprocity Treaties.

Lodge (Mass.) addressed the senate in opposition to the pending tariff bill and in the course of his remarks said: "It is always well to look at things as they are, always well to look at things as they are, in North Platte. Come and see them. even if the thing be free trade, to which some persons in beautiful language have consecrated themselves. It is best, if we It is in the latter and far graver aspect, as I have already said, that I prefer first to treat them."

If, he argued, the American manufacturer does not make money it is quite cer-tain that he will not employ labor, and. therefore, the workingmen will not make money either. Our manufacturers believe that under free trade they must either go out of business or reduce labor costs. They naturally do not care to do the former, for that is ruin, and they are very unwilling to try the latter, because reducing labor costs means lowering reducing labor costs means lowering reducing labor costs means lowering tics as to the wheat productions. In conclusion he said: "To maintain high rates of wages and to give, if possible, the fullest scope for their increase, believe to be essential, because I believe The Southern Pacific road has refused good wages absolutely vital to the stabilthing far more than a mere question of standards of living just as the exclusion of Chinese and of contract labor was The reduction of wages thus far made are trifling to what will come if this bill becomes a law and men seek to adjust themselves to the new conditions, Such a lowering of wages is not to be contemplated without the deepest alarm.
